Adult Foster Care – Helping You Care for Your Loved Ones at Home

January 2, 2014

More than 65 million people, 29% of the U.S. population, provide care for a chronically ill, disabled or aged family member or friend during any given year and spend an average of 20 hours per week providing care for their loved one.

Caregiving in the United States;

National Alliance for Caregiving in collaboration with AARP; November 2009

If you are taking care of a loved one and need additional support at home the Adult Foster Care program could offer the support you need.

Click on this link Adult Foster Care Program to find more information on this program.